Tips to help you cut down your alcohol intake

Drink and think in units: The UK's Chief Medical Officers (top doctors) recommend not drinking more than 14 units a week; that means about six pints of lager or a bottle and a half of wine. Use this handy unit calculator to help you work out exactly what you're drinking.

Pace yourself: Enjoy each drink slowly, and remember that you don't have to join in every time someone else decides, give it a miss have water or a soft drink instead!

Watch your measures: Remember that the drinks you pour at home are often larger than those served in pubs.

It's fine to say no: Not everyone drinks alcohol, and it's fine to say no. It's surprising how many people think it's OK to pressure other people to drink - it's not!

Have a few days off every week: Having a few alcohol-free days each week is a good way to cut down and give your body a rest, boost your immune system and improve your mental health and wellbeing.

Don't binge and drink all of your units in one go: It's safest not to drink more than 14 units per week, spread over three or more days and with a few days off in between.

Eat before and while you drink: Have something to eat before you drink and, if possible, while drinking. It will slow down the alcohol being absorbed into your bloodstream and help you pace yourself.

Ask for help: Ask for help if you feel your drinking is getting out of control. There's nothing to be ashamed of; lots of people struggle with alcohol at some point in their lives and need support to turn things around. Talk to your GP or contact your local alcohol treatment service.
